Implants

A New Paradigm for the General Dentist

7 hours of CE - AGD subject code 690

In this fast-paced presentation, Dr. Misch will take the participants from theory to reality on treatment planning philosophy, implant possibilities, surgical overview and restorative options in the dynamic arena of implant dentistry. This lecture is intended to give an overview of how implants can impact your philosophy of treatment planning in general dentistry and in all dental specialties where tooth loss is still sometimes an unfortunate fact of life. This lecture is not meant to be a surgical symposium nor a comprehensive restorative course. Even if you never plan to place an implant, this information can be an entryway into developing a tool for treatment planning that every practicing dentist should have available. In your career in dentistry you will see implants used. This course will aid in understanding the biomechanics and dynamics of implants and how they can be used to the benefit of your patients.

Carl E. Misch is Clinical Professor and Director, Oral Implantology at Temple University, Philadelphia. Since his graduation from the University of Detroit Dental School in 1973, he has focused his professional life to the area of implant dentistry both in private practice and in teaching in multiple venues. He has served as President of several implant organizations including the International Congress of Oral Implantologists, American Academy of Implant Dentistry, Academy of Implants and Transplants and the American College of Oral Implantologists. In 1984, Dr. Carl Misch founded the Misch International Implant Institute™ (MIII), which now has locations in Michigan and Canada. He has published over 220 articles and has repeatedly lectured in every state in the United States as well as in 47 countries throughout the world.

“You are within a tank of gas and a four hour drive of two national level speakers, hotel rates 33% less than last year, a luau celebration of our Dentist of the Year and a gathering of your AGD colleagues. You’ve asked for an annual meeting of this caliber – we now need your participation. Register by June 30 for additional savings.” Ernie Olyer, DDS, President TN AGD

Flourishing in Changing Times Making Bold Moves Or Retreat to Safety?

Change to 7 hours of CE – AGD subject code 550

For more than 20 years, Bill Blatchford has been working with doctors just like you as they create the dental practice environment and personal lives they desire. Dr. Blatchford sees certain common characteristics and behavior of very successful doctors he has coached. Successful dentists exhibit behavior that is bold. They have taken the time to see clearly who they are and where they want to position themselves. They surround themselves with a team who sees the same and supports their vision. When it comes time to make the big decisions, their actions are bold and rarely do they retreat back to their old comfort zone. Employees hunger for regular and clear vehicles for communication and perform best when given systems of accountability and reward. They come to feel needed and wanted.

Do you value your team enough to train together on a monthly basis so everyone is speaking as one? Does your office have layers of paperwork and managers of managers with more people doing the paperwork than the actual dentistry? Do you have hygienists and assistants scheduling, entering treatment, producing insurance forms and collecting fees? How would this change the sense of service in your practice?

This presentation will help to refocus the doctor and his team toward common goals. Dr. Blatchford will present systems and out-of-the-box ideas for clarifying your direction or setting your sails for new horizons. This will be an interactive presentation and team participation and involvement will be expected. Participants will leave invigorated and motivated to achieve a higher level of service for their patients. Doctors will leave with encouragement to set clear expectations for their team and create an atmosphere of team accountability. Quality patient communication skills will be played out so that all team members can be equally involved in discovering what patients want and lead them ethically to make decisions that will improve their dental condition.

Dental Assistant Certification Classes

YOU MUST BE A REGISTERED DENTAL ASSISTANT IN TENNESSEE TO TAKE CERTIFICATION CLASSES

Radiology Certification Course

Friday and Saturday, August 13-14, 2010

This two-day course involves both lecture and participation exercises to master the intricacies of dental radiology, safety issues and theory behind radiology. When completed students will have the knowledge and confidence to return to the office and use the skills they have learned on a daily basis. After the course, students must submit paperwork and receive certification by the Tennessee Board of Dentistry prior to using taking radiographs in the office.

Nitrous Oxide Monitoring Certification Course

Saturday, August 14, 2010

This is a one day course teaching currently registered dental assistants the science behind nitrous oxide and its usage in dentistry. When completed students will have the knowledge and confidence to return to their office and use the skills they have learned on a daily basis. After the course, students must submit paperwork and receive certification by the Tennessee Board of Dentistry prior to using taking radiographs in the office.

Certification Courses taught by Stan Covington, DDS

Dr. J.S. Covington is Professor of Biologic and Diagnostic Sciences in the College of Dentistry and also Professor and Chair of the Department of Dental Hygiene in the College of Allied Health Science at the University of Tennessee Health Science Center in Memphis, Tennessee.

Dr. Covington is a member of the Tennessee Dental Association, the American and International College of Dentist and the Royal Society of Medicine of London.
